Yes. Since he is removing a bedroom in the existing house, but adding a bedroom to the addition it seems that the original permit would suffice bedroom wise. Since, we haven't been able to locate the permit yet and I couldn't verify the number of bedrooms on it, it seemed that an existing system inspection was the best way to begin in this situation. He is adding to the footprint of the house which requires septic approval via the existing system inspection. I told him that if we found out that the original permit was for less bedrooms, he would have to pay more.

Ronda, you have talked with this gentleman, you could not find the septic layout and told him to pay for existing septic and if he needed to pay more he could later. Thanks Debbie
